HOUSEWIFE MAKES FRENCH TOAST FOR HUSBAND

Family Shocked, Inquiry Underway

By Ernbo Flemmerton

A Quaintsville woman was being held for questioning Tuesday morning at the request of in-laws who wished to remain anonymous. She had prepared french toast for her husband, which was shocking in itself, but when the husband was poured a cup of coffee and asked whether he preferred maple syrup or kumquat jam as a topping, he collapsed into a catatonic state. Sid Millerky, a paramedic arriving at the residence, described an eerie scene.

"There was this guy, see, his eyes were glazed over, mouth was open, and he was motionless and drooling all over the table, while his wife frantically tried to snap him out of it. The stereo was on full blast, playing Blame it on the Bossa Nova".

The hapless husband was life flighted to Mercy Hospital, where he was reportedly in guarded condition.

BROSNANIANS GATHER Fundraiser Successful

By Ed Coonce
Bugle Staff Writer

The North Bergen Brosnianian Society held a candlelight vigil and fund-raiser Thursday for the ailing Pierce Brosnan, recently declared insane, a victim of the War on Shmutz. Luminaries and laborers held hands and chanted, then Madonna and Eddie Money sang a duet, "I Can't Stop Loving You", accompanied by Los Lonely Boys and TreePeople. The event,

CHIMPS PARTY!

Shmutz Responsible, Rev. Jackson Attempts Therapy

By Marston Tidwell

In a stunning new development, the effects of exposure to shmutz were found to be even more insidious than believed. At a certain point after exposure, the shmutz user descends into an elevated party mood. The "Bergen Six" smart chimps have exhibited this tendency. The Reverend Jesse Jackson was called in to attempt motivating the chimps away from this degrading behavior. Rev. Jackson counseled them concerning their new status, urged them to attend church regularly and register to vote, then had the chimps repeat over and over, "I am..some body!"

By the end of the first session, the Rainbow Chimp Coalition had been established and the "Million Chimp March" organized. XB36c or "God" addressed the chimps at the conclusion of the last counseling session.

"Brothers! I have a dream!", he told the attentive yet raucous audience. "I see a day when our kind everywhere will become intelligent! I see a day when chimps and humans can walk the streets together. I see a time in the near future, when because of our superior strength and our stupendous intellect, we shall rule the world!"

Reverend Jackson

held on the Bergen Polo Grounds, drew a crowd of over ten thousand.

At that moment, armed security officers moved in and whisked "God" off the stage.

The Reverend Jackson exited hastily through a side door and sped away in his Porsche, reportedly yelling, "Don't ever call me again!"
