LEGAL FIRM SINKING New Image In The Works

By Ed Coonce
Bugle Staff Writer

In response to concerned clients and months of public tittering, the prominent legal firm of Darlington, Underhill and Harris have trashed their ubiquitous "DUH" billboards, and have announced a new advertising and graphic image, to be unveiled Christmas Eve.

"That will be just in time for the holiday driving season, and we're hoping for more business as a result," said partner Dabney Underhill.

Although Underhill had no comment, it is widely believed that DU&H has lost money for the last year, even though accidents are up throughout Bergen County..

HIGH-TECH PUNISHMENT

Shmutz Dealer Sentenced

By Ernbo Flemmerton
Bugle Staff Writer

North Bergen Bureau___In Bergen County Superior Court Thursday, Judge Zacharias Strong sentenced Benson Rheingeldt, convicted of trafficking in shmutz and corruption of socialites, to a new and novel form of punishment. With the help of the DigiCell Corporation, the new owner of Fox News, the hapless Rheingeldt was ordered to be fitted with a holographic laser thought bubble while in public. If caught without it, he would immediately be remanded to the Quaintsville Correctional Institute for a period of three years and one day.

The bubble itself is a product of DigiCell's foray into new stadium scoreboard display technology. The bubble's message changes every few minutes, the messages range from "I'm An Idiot" to "Shmutz Kills".

"I hope this teaches you a lesson, Mr. Rheingeldt," pronounced Judge Strong. "I also want you to take anti-shmutz therapy and submit a progress report every week to your parole officer."

The judge also sentenced Rheingeldt to 500 hours of community service at the Yiddish Veteran's Home. At the conclusion of his community service, he was to be tested on his ability to create the perfect knish.

ply as Björk, it is widely rumored that she is the love child of Pierce Brosnan, now languishing in a dank room at the Quaintsville Center for the Developmentally Challenged.

The runner-up and winner of the Princess Mediterranean cruise was Austrian Gerhardt Schwimmerstein, whose rendition of Yodel Odle Polka while balancing a keg of St. Pauli Girl on his head earned him a contract
