

"That is the story. Do you think there is any way of making them believe it?" (Plato, 380BC)

BROSNAN UNDERGOES SHOCK TREATMENTS

"Time Will Tell", says Dr. Kancrolujski

By Ed Coonce
Managing Editor

AP__As the bells at the Pottstown Cathedral tolled the midnight hour, Pierce Brosnan stirred, and with much effort and lots of heavy breathing, rose from the shmutz-induced coma, opened his eyes, pushed past his wife and well wishers keeping vigil by his bed, then tried to climb out one of the fifth floor hospital room windows. He was quickly corralled by Quaintsville Center for the Developmentally Challenged security personnel and hustled into the post-operative secure area, where a strait jacket was strapped onto his upper body.

"We're doing this for your own good", one of the guards was quoted as saying, and then quickly added, "You may still think you're James Bond, but you're obviously not."

"As a matter of fact," the guard continued, adding insult to injury, "while you were unconscious, the studio signed on Daniel Craig as the new James Bond."

At the news of this development, Brosnan wriggled across the floor, snake-like, and assumed a fetal position under the gurney. Armed orderlies then picked up the sobbing and uncontrollably drooling actor and prepped him for his first round of shock treatments.

Dr. Kale Kancrolujski, the chief surgeon, explained the pending procedure. "A hole will be drilled into the cerebral penduncle, and a wire probe inserted. A jolt of 600 microamps will be applied, then repeated ten times over the next twenty four hours."

When asked about the anticipated results, the doctor replied. "We expect to see a gradual acceptance of the change in his job status, and a return to Hollywood, possibly as a contestant on "So You Think You Can Dance", or maybe even doing a voice over or two for "Family Guy."

Hovering nearby were Brosnan's wife and three former girlfriends, anxious because Brosnan had not recognized any of them during his initial awakening.

[see "Shaken But Not Stirred", Page A4]

CEO INDICTED "I Didn't Do It", says Just Say Yes! Founder

By Clark Kent Features Editor

North Bergen Bureau__ The defendant was silent and unsmiling as his lawyer, Harry Pincus, Senior Partner at Pincus and Glockfern, pleaded with Judge Hadley Hartless to disallow a key piece of evidence in the trial for Joey Hat, CEO of the Just SayYes! Corporation.

Joey Hat

Prosecutors in the case say Hat ran a classic Ponzi scheme, raking in millions from new investors to pay off old investors. Two dream homes, a Studebaker Benz, race horses, and an extreme tiddleywinks team owner, his ill gotten gains

[see "He's Outta Here" A5]

INSIDE

LOCAL

City Revokes Dog License

Little Billy Smitzenberghur's dachshund, Lucky, is persona non grata, says Mayor's office. "All he did was bite the Mayor", says Billy. "He bites everybody!" A7

NATION

Marine Corps Birthday

On this day in 1775, in Tun Tavern in Philadelphia, a bunch of drunks came up with the idea of a Marine Corps. A3

ENTERTAINMENT

Bruce Campbell Returns

The return of Briscoe County Junior, the greatest western sci-fi comedy ever, starring Bruce Campbell, set for Dec. 7. D3

BUSINESS

Pharmaceutical Moneymaker

Testikleen Corporation rolls out a new line of male personal hygiene products, including Testikleen Platinum Wipes. F1

NEW CHIMP DETECTIVE IN TOWN

With Permission

Can He Solve A Seven-Month-Old Case?

By Marston Tidwell
Bugle Staff Writer

North Bergen Bureau__ The Girl Scout Liquor Store Robbery case is being investigated by Blinky Muggs, North Bergen's latest flatfoot to inherit the notoriously difficult-to-prosecute crime. A veteran of the war on shmutz, he has vowed to bring the offenders to justice.

"I'll be on the job twenty four seven, bet on it", said the tough guy himself, the chimp responsible for the roundup of the notorious Rottweiler Brothers. "Their bark was worse

[see "He's Comin' For You", Page A6]